Hi, [REDACTED], nice to hear from you. Oof, that's a tough question to find an easy answer to. There are so many different groups engaged in removal, which is a good problem to have, but makes it difficult to track. I think there will be a push to track those acres when funding to do large scale removal is secured. Right now, there's just so much of it out there, the treatment acreage is relatively trivial, sad to say.

Subject: last minute data request

Greetings [REDACTED]!

My report is nearly finished and I just need to confirm a detail I found somewhere but now cannot remember when I got this info to cite it properly.

I'm wondering about data showing how many acres of Arundo have already been eradicated from SCR and how many are currently under removal project plans. Is there an easy place to find that info?

Thank you so much, I'm under a deadline so thanks for your help!
